

NEGRO KILLED BY MOB MAY CAUSE WAR

Oklahoma Town in State of Terror Following Clash
Between Two Races

TROOPS ARE ORDERED OUT

Alleged Insult to White Girl Brings on Fight Resulting in Death of Two

COWETA, Okla., Oct. 22.—Edward Suddeth, a negro, was shot to death tonight by a mob of citizens who had armed themselves following a battle this afternoon between blacks and whites in which Suddeth killed J. D. Beavers, city attorney, and wounded Carmen Oliver, and Stealer Thompson, whites. Suddeth was wounded and then strung up to a water tank, but was cut down before he died and locked in a vacant building. Tonight Deputy Sheriff Flowers attempted to take the slayer to Wagoner to jail. As the negro was lifted into an automobile the mob opened fire on him. Probably 50 shots entered his body.

Large numbers of enraged negroes arrived tonight from the surrounding country and a race war seems inevitable.

The white men of the town are patrolling the streets and guarding their homes as best they can. They were afraid to bring the women out of the houses and send them to school as in the last town out. They also said they would not go to school as they were next train which passes through Coweta at midnight.

Trouble Started Saturday.
The trouble started yesterday. A telephone operator named Swager, was talking with a young woman when Ed. Ruse, a negro, in passing, pushed the girl from the sidewalk into the mud. Swager struck at the negro and another white man whose name is being kept secret, seized Ruse, and Swager beat him with his fists.

Today Ruse has been walking the streets with a long knife in his pocket and the man who held him. City Marshal Hart ordered the negro to give up the knife, and Ruse shot at him. At that instant, Suddeth ran.

CHINESE FLEE WITHOUT COAL OR RICE; ASKS HELP

PEKIN, Oct. 22.—The full text of a joint dispatch sent by Admirals Jui Chang and Cha Chen-Ping, in command of the warships off Hankow, is published in the Chinese papers, showing that there has been a sudden and unexpected relaxation of the censorship. The dispatch says:

"As the second installment of the Tsin Tsin troops arrived at the river station, they were attacked by 2,000 to 3,000 rebels. Gun Chuan-piao led the troops from Huang, Hu Peh and Honan, killing 300 to 400 rebels. They also captured six big guns and numerous other weapons. More than 100 loyalists were killed."

"The fleet is without coal or rice. We can only appeal to the throne to send us Tchang immediately with artillery."

National Assembly O.—
The national assembly was opened this afternoon by Prince Shui-tou, of the house of Li, who, by a secret edict, was deputed to the last session to take the place of the emperor. The route to the palace was lined with troops, and the adjacent walls were listening with bayonets of the Imperial guards.

After the Imperial delegates entered the chamber, the members of the cabinet, all of whom were present, knelt before the throne. The emperor, who was seated on a raised platform, then addressed the assembly. He urged the members to turn their knowledge and energy into the good account to insure the well-being of the nation and to give effect to the wishes of the people. No mention was made of the throne.

ACCUSED PREACHER HAS NOT RESIGNED

Alleged Murderer of Pretty
Choir Girl Still Holds
His Pastorate

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—In their efforts to clear up the circumstances of the death of Avis Linnell, the Hyannis Sunday school teacher and music student, with whose murder the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson is charged, the police have been unable, it is said, to locate the receptacle which held the poison.

When the girl took the dose of cyanide of potassium which caused her death, she was in the bathroom of the Y. W. C. A. home, and, though the house was searched immediately after her death, the poison receptacle could not be found. It was said at first that a piece of paper found beside the body had contained the poison, but this is now denied by the police.

At the time of her death, Miss Linnell wore a bathrobe over her night dress, but this was buried with her. When the police learned of this fact, they surmised that the cyanide container had been thrust into the pocket of the bathrobe, and it was believed that orders would have to be given to exhumate the body. Inquiry tonight, however, revealed that the medical examiner's assistant examined the bathrobe carefully, and he declares there was nothing in the pockets of the garment.

Dined Together, Says Friend.

Deputy Superintendent Watts said today that he had information of a direct character that Mr. Richeson dined with Miss Linnell the afternoon of the day on which the young girl took the fatal dose. This information, he said, came from a young woman who is not a member of the Y. W. C. A. home. She met Miss Linnell on the street late yesterday afternoon.

"Miss Linnell told me," said Deputy Watts' informant, "that she had just dined with Richeson and that she was going home, as she was suffering from a headache."

The morning worship at the Immanuel Baptist church, Cambridge, today, was without reference of any kind to the plight of Richeson, its pastor. It had been reported that Mr. Richeson would resign his pastorate today, but no letter from him was forthcoming. It was the expressed opinion of Thomas Runney, chairman of the finance committee, today, that Mr. Richeson should resign, and the church be relieved of his services.

The opinion that Mr. Richeson will not resign his pastorate or leave his statement to the public or to his parishioners, was expressed by his counsel, Philip R. Dunbar, today. Mr. Dunbar said he had advised the minister to make no statement of any kind, and, further, that he would advise against Mr. Richeson handing in his resignation.

Pastor's Fiance Ill.
Miss Violet Edmonds, the fiancée of Richeson, is said to be ill as a result of the shock which she received when her clergyman lover was taken to jail. The Edmonds' family physician has made frequent visits to the Edmonds home during the last few days. It has also been reported that Mr. Richeson has released his fiancée from her engagement, but her father, when questioned today about the matter, refused to discuss it. Nor would Mr. Edmonds say whether the wealth of his daughter or himself is behind the counsel for Richeson.

It is said that Miss Edmonds assured the minister before parting with him, Friday, that he could command all her property, if necessary, for his defense. The young woman is believed to have several thousand dollars, and her father is generally reputed a millionaire.

OUTBREAK IN MEXICO IS EXPECTED TODAY

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 22.—It is reported here tonight upon the authority of a member of Governor Gonzalez's staff, who is in the city from Chihuahua, that tomorrow is the date set for the outbreak of the Reyes revolution in Mexico. It is alleged documents have been captured revealing this fact and the outbreak is to occur at some point in the state of Tamaulipas.

"Jacobson, the noted rebel leader who has been making so much trouble in the state of Sonora, arrived in this city today from Marathon, Tex., where it is stated he held a conference with representatives of General Francisco R. de la Huerta, who has been under the command of both United States and Mexican secret service men."

General Villaseñor, of Mexico City, inspector general of rurales in the republic, is in Juarez arranging for the organization of three corps of rurales in the state of Chihuahua. The organization will be made from the Insurrectos. Two corps will be stationed in the city of Chihuahua, and one in Juarez.

Forty new corps, of 3,000 men each, are to be organized in the republic.

BRIDAL COUPLE FOUND STARVING IN BOX CAR

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Held in the detention home for examination as to their sanity, a bride and groom found asleep in a freight car by the P. & N. today of their start in matrimony on a capital of $2. George Burch, the husband, is 30 years old. His wife Mabel is 25.

Burch said that he and his bride had not tasted food for more than two days, his only possession being a soiled newspaper clipping.

According to the police, Burch said he and his wife escaped from the home for feeble-minded at Highland, Mich., several days ago.

"Mabel and I were sweethearts in the home," said Burch. "I had $2. We ran away and walked to St. Joseph. I spent part of the money for a license and then hunted up a minister who married us. We slept that night in a basement in St. Joseph. We then started to walk to Chicago, and slept the next night in a hay stack. I am glad the policeman found us. I spent all my money getting married."

TELLS OF HARDSHIPS ON GOSPEL YACHT

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 22.—Worn out by long hours at the pumps, which had been manned continuously for days to keep their craft afloat, the crew of the Holy Ghost and its society yacht Coronet, which arrived yesterday, after having been at sea since last June, welcomed a party who came from Shiloh to relieve them today.

Mate McKay came ashore last night with Dr. Chas. Pankas, physician of the marine hospital, and announced today that he was leaving Rev. Frank Sanford, leader of the society, for good.

The mate declined to discuss affairs aboard the vessel, but Dr. Pankas said he would call the attention of the United States district attorney to the conditions aboard the yacht.

"I was disgusted with conditions and I think there should be some way to reach whoever is responsible," said Dr. Pankas. "Many members of the crew are in a terrible condition with scurvy. The two in the hospital, John Cummings and John Bolster, have the worst cases I have ever seen."

Mr. Sanford returned to the Coronet today after being released on bail following his arrest in a civil action by Mrs. Florence Waltraker. He would not say where he was a few weeks ago, but would tell that he had suffered from scurvy. Regarding the few weeks Sanford said:

EXPECT COURT WILL DECIDE TODAY ON M'NAMARA JURORS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—With the exception of Judge Walter Bordwell, who read and reviewed a tangled record containing diverse answers of three talesmen under examination last week and challenged for bias, no move was made today by any of the principal figures in the case of James B. McNamara, on trial for murder resulting from the explosion of the Times building here a year ago.

Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, visited James B. McNamara and his brother, John J., secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Ironworkers, and talked with them in their cell for nearly an hour. Darrow declared that nothing new had developed requiring any conference with the prisoners, but that his visit was purely one of courtesy.

District Attorney John D. Frederick, spent the day in the country, but various members of his staff concerned themselves further with preparations for tomorrow's session of court when it is expected that Judge Bordwell will rule on three talesmen under challenge for cause. George W. McKee, for prejudice against labor unions; E. C. Robinson and A. R. McIntosh, for scruples against capital punishment.

Immediately the talesmen are disposed of the jury box will be filled up again as at present it is half empty.

The most active of the district attorney's staff is the squad that is working on the evidence accepted from witnesses for the state. Attention is being given especially to lining up those witnesses who are expected to corroborate the alleged confession of Orlie McManis, admittedly the strongest card of the prosecution.

McManis' Talk.
McManis is in frequent conference with members of the state attorney's office and detectives allied with that side of the case. He sat in his cell today talking freely and confidently about his part in the case. When the

HAIRPIER BESTS RUMGLAR IN BOULDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—After a vicious assault upon an electrical dummy that gave the residence of Judge A. B. McDowell, of this city, a burglar fled from the premises early today leaving his loot behind. The burglar, a 40-year-old man, was carrying a fractured head piece and internal injuries.

The burglar was found at the threshold of the main stairway in the McDowell home. He was upon the staircase completed an electrical circuit which caused the dummy to wave its arms at the same time bursting forth in flames. The burglar, a 40-year-old man, was carrying a fractured head piece and internal injuries.

It was Judge Treadwell who sentenced Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, to 25 days in jail here for spitting an apple.

'SUGAR, WOMEN AND SOAP MAKE US GREAT'—WILEY

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 22.—If a country trades its women right, eats more sugar, wears more soap and consumes more liquor, it is the greatest nation on earth, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the government's chemistry bureau, in his address this afternoon to the National American Woman Suffrage convention.

Dr. Wiley had been introduced by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the association as "The man who is trying to give us a fair chance to live."

He began by enumerating the things that make for a country's greatness, narrowing down to the three requisites named. By these tokens, he concluded, America is first.

Dr. Wiley, Miss Mary Johnston of Richmond, Va., Miss Sophronia Brackenridge of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, Mich., were speakers at the open meeting held at a local theater and attended by over 2,000 men as well as women.

Dr. Wiley declared he never had heard of an organized band of women being on the wrong side.

"Women," he said, "are a tower of strength to every public man who is trying to do his duty. I don't know why she has been kept from the polls. Surely not because of lack of intelligence. What we need in politics is more ethics rather than more intellect."

Miss Brackenridge devoted her attention to the suffrage question from the viewpoint of the working women. She expressed her conviction "That the ballot is at present a domestic necessity and that housekeeping is a public function."

Enlightened cities must be governed as enlightened homes are jointly by enlightened men and women for the benefit and trust of the rising generation," declared Mrs. Crane.

"Politics at its best," she continued, "is a noble profession in which we should take pride. Woman's interest in public affairs by reason of her long experience in home making and mothering of children has fitted her for politics just as well as has man's activities in trade. When trade gets attention trade gets it. When women get the ballot all else will be regulated so as best to promote the home."

MAJOR G. E. RANDOLPH,
PIONEER, FOUND DEAD

DENVER, Oct. 22.—Major George E. Randolph, 71 years old, who for a time commanded the Third artillery corps during the Civil war, was found dead in his bed this morning by a member of his family, who went to call him. Heart disease, with which he had been afflicted for several years, caused his death.

Major Randolph was known as the "father" of the Denver and Interurban railway, and was general manager when horse cars were running here. He built the Denver cable lines, starting the work in 1888. He served as chairman of the board of public works in Denver for four years. He first located in Colorado at Central City, in 1864, and was mayor of that city before his removal to Denver.

MINING CONGRESS IN IMPORTANT SESSION

Conservation Policy of Taft to Be Made Known at Meeting Friday

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Official announcement of the government's policy concerning the Alaskan coal fields is scheduled as the most important feature of the fourteenth annual session of the American Mining congress, which will take place here October 24 to 28, inclusive. Secretary of the Interior Fisher is on the program to speak Friday, and President Taft is scheduled to give an address Saturday, on the "Federal Government and the Mining Industry."

The list of speakers who will deal extensively with every phase of mining questions, includes representatives from Canada, Mexico, members of the federal congress and governors of mining states.

According to Secretary Callbreath of the Mining congress, who has opened headquarters here, positive assurance has been received from Secretary Fisher that he will make public the conservation policy of President Taft.

Another feature of the congress will be a conference of governors of coal-producing states. A scheme of uniform legislation to govern the coal-mining industry will be presented for ratification. One of the chief speakers will be President Bush of the Missouri Pacific railroad.

Senior Gilberto Crespo y Martinez, Mexican ambassador to the United States, will speak on the mining industry of his country. Thomas W. Gibbons, deputy commissioner of mines of the Dominion of Canada, will speak on the relations of the Dominion to the industry.

Workmen's compensation, the copper industry, the cement industry of the south, the relation of congress to mining and discussion of methods to safeguard coal miners will be the chief features Wednesday. John Hays Hammond will speak on federal legislation.

Thursday will be devoted to the coal industry, part of the day being given to consideration of the effect of the Sherman law on coal mining.

The Alaskan question will occupy most of Thursday. Ambassador Martinez, Secretary Fisher and John Hays Hammond speaking in the evening. Governor Spry of Utah, Governor James of Arizona and former Governor Thomas of Colorado will talk of public lands of the west. President Taft's address will be the feature of Saturday, the closing day.

SUSPECT SMITHERMAN OF KANSAS MURDERS

ELLSWORTH, Kan., Oct. 22.—New evidence, said by Prosecutor Samuel Bartlett to indicate strongly that John Smitherman, held as a suspect in the Showman murder case, is the mysterious "John Smith," found guilty by a coroner's jury of committing the crimes, caused county officials today to decide to put the suspect to the severest tests before releasing him. Relatives of Showman refuse to believe that Smitherman had anything to do with the crime.

ROYALISTS PLANNING TO ATTACK OPORTO

LISBON, Oct. 22 (Via the Frontier).—As time passes and the failure of the Royalist campaign appears to be more and more certain, the people in general continue completely indifferent to the Royalist propaganda. An additional reason for their quiescent attitude is to be found in a proclamation just issued by the Carabineros, that any inhabitant discovered conspiring against the republic shall be instantly shot.

The Royalists have suffered further discouragement on the frontier, for the Spanish government apparently has decided to take active measures against them. During the last 48 hours 400 Royalists have been disarmed. Spain's reluctance to act against the Portuguese Royalists until lately has been due to the fact that the Portuguese Republicans have been in close correspondence with the Spanish Republicans. This the Spanish government could not approve, and therefore had declined to let the Portuguese Republican government fight its own battles.

In spite of these obstacles, the Royalists are reported as preparing for a second combined incursion into Portugal. They will be divided into three columns: 150 men under Captain Couciere, the Royalist leader, near Port Torrelhomen; 300 under Camacho, near Lindoso; and 250 under Chagas, near Petos.

These will await the subsidence of the floods, and the arrival of a Royalist cruiser, and it is said then will attack Oporto.

There is a report that Captain Couciere has been stabbed, but no details are given.

The Diario Noticias publishes a dispatch from Abrantes, 80 miles from Lisbon, to the effect that last night a band armed with rifles and revolvers was surprised by a military force in the act of tearing up the railroad tracks. The plan was to derail and attack a train. Several volleys were exchanged, and the wreckers fled leaving three dead.

It is reported that an attack has been made on the government ammunition stores at Barcarena, but the soldiers fired upon the attacking party, who immediately dispersed.

Trains and Artillery

PANIC PREVAILS IN PEKIN
Government Seeks Money Loan
From Japan—May Apply for Military Assistance

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—The main army of the Chinese government under War Minister Ying Tchang, said to number 20,000 men, was totally defeated yesterday at Kwang Shui, Hui Peh province, according to a cable received by the Chinese Free Press of this city.

The rebel army of 15,000, under Li Yueng, it is stated, captured artillery, baggage train and ammunition of the Imperials who retreated to Shogot.

The cable stated that the Imperial forces were completely routed and abandoned their supply trains during the retreat. The mountain passes at Kwang Shui, said to be of great strategic value, now are said to be held by the Revolutionists, giving them control of the Hankow-Pekin railroad over which the Imperial troops are being moved.

Governor Sun Po Kue of the province of Shantung, is reported to have narrowly escaped death yesterday and to be in hiding in Chingtao. Revolutionists burned the governor's residence at Tel Nan Peh, according to cables to the Chinese Free Press, and the majority of the Imperial troops went over to the Revolutionists.

The viceroy of Canton, it also was stated, has ordered the suppression of all war news in provincial newspapers. Following is a translation of the cable announcing the Imperials' defeat received by the Free Press.

"SHANGHAI, Oct. 22, 7 a. m.—Big engagement between Revolutionaries forces and Imperial army. Fifteen thousand Revolutionaries attacked General Yin Tchang's army in Mountain pass at Kwang Shui in the mountain range between Hui Peh and Hohai provinces where General Yin made headquarters. Imperial army retreated, great slaughter, 21 miles north. All stores, artillery, ammunition of General Yin left behind, captured by Revolutionists. Great victory for Commander-in-Chief Li Yuen Huen, who led rebel army. Revolutionists control every mountain pass."

The following was received today by the Young China, a Chinese paper of this city.

"SHANGHAI, Oct. 21.—Revolutionists control 30 mountain passes. Pekin in panic."

BRITISH CONSUL RECEIVES CONFIRMATION OF BATTLE

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22.—The British consul here is in receipt of a telegram by way of Kingkang, from the consul at Hankow, stating that news has been received that Changhsia in Hunan province and Chang in Hui Peh province are in the hands of the rebels. At the latter place 15,000 coolies have made a demand for their wages in silver, which cannot be obtained.

Reported witnesses of the recent engagement between the revolutionaries and Imperialists at Hankow have arrived here. They say that shells fired by the Imperialists fell in the German concessions. Apparently they were pom-pom shells, but an examination proved that they were composed of wood. The same conditions existed in the Chinese-Japanese war the officials having found a contractor with a supply of wooden shells. The North Chinese News says that the first engagements at Hankow were apparently trumpet affairs, both sides being timid.

From the Chinese inland mission comes an account of the first engagement Wednesday. The revolutionists moved down the face course and there was some skirmishing. About noon 25 rebel wounded were brought to the London mission. Coolies destroyed the covered bridges and officers of the Imperial troops came down on an engine and impeded the advance.

Imperialists Driven Back.
As the Imperialists retired toward Kowloon station they did not, reportedly, to the rebel fire. The rebels advanced clearing, but their shots for the most part fell short. Great numbers of rebels proceeded back of the concessions to the river side railway embankment.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Chinese cruisers opened fire on the rebels who were attacking the Chinese town. The rebels retired after the third shot. The cruisers freely shelled the rebel position east of the river, source and approach.

GOD'S LONGER DAYS
A THOUSAND YEARS

THE LENGTH AND VALUE OF TIME
Viewed From the Divine Versus the Human Standpoint—Pastor Russell Still Abroad.

"A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday." "A day with the Lord is as a thousand years."—Psalm xc. 4, 11 Peter iii. 8.

London, Tabernacle, Lancaster Gate, W., Oct. 22.—Pastor Russell spoke here twice today to large audiences. We report one of the discourses, which treated on the difference between human and divine standards of measurement. He said in part:

From the divine viewpoint, earth's history, from Adam's day until now, is merely the workday portion of a great week, whose seventh day, or Sabbath, of a thousand years, is "the day of Christ," "the last day," "the day of judgment," or trial for the world, the day in which "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God," the day in which "the righteous shall flourish and the evil-doers shall be cut off." In the second death, the day during which God will "pour out his spirit upon all flesh," as he now grants it to his servants and his handmaidens.

In the divinely arranged custom of the Jews the new day began at sunset. Thus we are in the evening or beginning of the great seventh day of the divine week—the day which means so much of blessing, uplifting, privilege, opportunity of divine favor to our race through Messiah's glorious kingdom, which throughout this seventh day will reign "from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth," putting down everything contrary to the divine standards and uplifting the world of mankind (bought with the precious blood at Calvary) from sin, meanness, degradation and the tomb-up, up, up, step by step to human perfection in a worldwide Eden.

"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt not do any work." Whoever reads carefully, intelligently, the pages of history, must be struck with the working energy which has been manifested by our race and is still being manifested. The pyramids and the ruins of ancient cities, and civilization, all tell us of the ceaseless struggle of humanity against the adverse conditions prevailing in the earth, including the strife against sickness and death, and by a few a noble fight against sin and further degradation.

Next the Lesson of Good.

The forbidden fruit of Eden was from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Doubtless the creator would eventually have given a full knowledge of both good and evil to our first parents. They were merely forbidden an immediate plunge into knowledge to their disadvantage. Craving knowledge before its due time, Mother Eve disobeyed her maker and enticed her husband into disobedience. The result has been that instead of entering the philosophy of good at first and of evil later, they and their yoke have been precipitated into lessons respecting evil first, with the knowledge of good to come later.

The holy angels, who have never transgressed the divine law, have continually the lesson of good—an appreciation of the divine character, the principles of righteousness, etc. Their lessons in respect to evil they are gaining by observation instead of by experience—the way recommended to our first parents by the creator, but in their ignorance rejected.

But God foreknew the course which his human children would take under the influence of temptation; he foreknew that they would fall into sin and therefore would experience its penalty, sorrow, pain and death. While his eye has pitied his poor creatures for 4,000 years, nevertheless he has allowed his great original plan of the ages to move along slowly to a grand climax.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the time I was afflicted with a nervous condition. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATER, 61 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice as to your case, send a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Ly. E. P. M. Her advice is free.

HEALTHY MOTHERS

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with a weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores.

Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

Fifteen to Fifty

CAND-DOWNS

That climax in human affairs, we believe, is near at hand. It marks a great change in Dispensation. The 6,000 years, the reign of sin and death, are to be completed by a terrible time of trouble, which might not improperly be termed the natural result of human selfishness (sin) operating under the influence of the great principles of the new dispensation now ushering in. Selfishness, as represented in the accumulated financial power and energy called trusts and combines, is about to come into conflict with selfishness (sin), represented in the combining forces of humanity, labor unions, etc. The head-on collision which thinking people foresee, and which the scriptures graphically portray, will give to society an earthquake shock; the graphic picture is a world conflagration which will involve the "heavens," or ecclesiastical powers, as well as the "earth," or social system, and the "mountains," or kingdoms of the world.

God Has Not Neglected Us.

From this divine viewpoint God is not slack concerning his promises. Only six days of the week have yet passed. The glorious seventh day in which the great mediator between God and men will assume his kingdom powers, is just at hand. Instead of thinking that God is neglecting and forgetting to fulfill the messianic promise, we should, with the eyes of faith, realize that he is working all things according to the counsel of his own will. We should consider the matter from the standpoint that God has exercised great patience with humanity in not blotting out the race; he has been long-suffering. And this assures us that the unchangeable one would prefer that none of his creatures should perish in death, but rather that all, if they would, might turn to him and live.—II Peter iii. 9, Ezekiel xxxiii. 11.

The great opportunity for the masses of our race to turn to the Lord and to attain everlasting life will be after the darkness shall have passed, when the sun of righteousness shall be shining forth, after the highway of holiness shall have taken the place of the broad road to destruction, after Messiah, the great king, shall have dethroned Satan, the prince of darkness, from the world's control, after the prince of peace shall have established peace upon a proper basis. Who can not sing heartily with the poet:

"A thousand years, earth's coming glory,
Tis the glad day so long foretold.
Tis the glad morn of Zion's glory,
Prophecy foresees in times of old."

ROB SALOON OWNER AND SHOOT WITNESS

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Oct. 22.—Two masked men, armed with revolvers, entered a saloon at Healdsburg at 3:35 today after they had bound and gagged him, stuffing a towel into his mouth with the butt of a revolver. Upon leaving, the bandits shot a young Italian who was approaching the saloon on a bicycle. Two suspects are under arrest.

HEALTHY MOTHERS

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with a weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores.

PRESIDENT MEETS MANY INSURGENTS

PIERRE, S. D., Oct. 22.—President Taft met men prominent among the insurgents of his party here today. United States Senator Crawford, one of the leaders of the "insurgents," and an acknowledged supporter of Senator La Follette for the Republican presidential nomination in 1912, was one. Another, Governor Vessey, who is credited as a La Follette supporter, had the president at luncheon.

President Taft attended services at the Pierre Methodist church this morning and spoke after luncheon in the auditorium, on "Peace and Arbitration."

Following the auditorium speech, Congressmen Burke took the president for a 60-mile automobile ride in a wind keen enough to make the chief executive leap for the bearskin overcoat he wore through Russia four years ago.

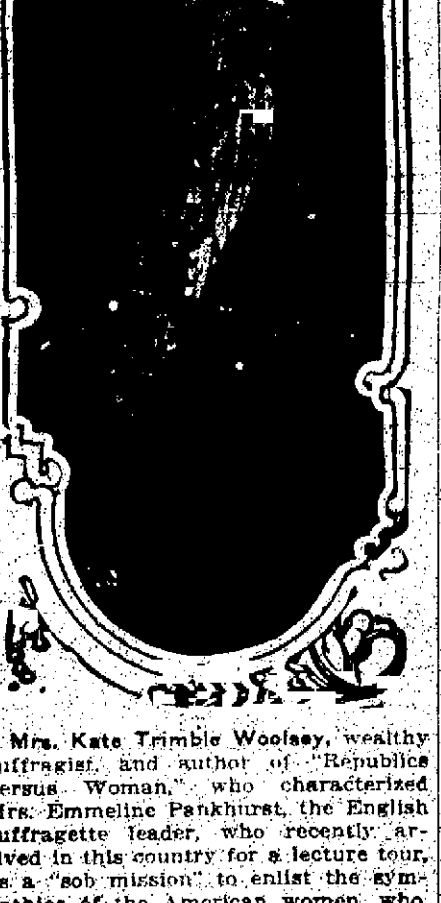

Regarding the ride, the president had a reception for 75 "boosters" from the Rosebud country, many of whom got up at 4 o'clock and motored 125 miles to shake hands with him.

The "boosters" wore soft white hats with artificial red rosebuds stuck through the bands.

At dinner tonight, the president had real buffalo steak, furnished through the courtesy of the heirs of the late Scotty Phillips, owner of the largest herd of buffalo in the world.

A telegram from Governors Colquhoun of Texas, Mills of New Mexico and Sloan of Arizona, Mayor Kelly and James McNary, president of the chamber of commerce of El Paso, was received by the president here today. It read as follows:

"We are celebrating together the admission to statehood of Arizona and New Mexico. We have just joined in drinking a toast to the president of the United States, and, on behalf of the people here, wish to extend to you our most cordial greetings."

SIX MILLIONS FOR MINERAL WATERS

Figures of United States Geological Survey Show a Production in 1910 of 62,000,000 Gallons

In 1910 the sales of mineral water in the United States amounted to $6,367,630, the product being 62,030,125 gallons, as reported by George C. Matson of the United States geological survey. Minnesota was the greatest producer, with 9,962,370 gallons, derived from 19 springs. New York was a close second, selling 6,736,803 gallons from 46 springs. Wisconsin, however, obtained the greatest income from her mineral waters, her sales amounting to $974,368. New York was second, with $858,635; and Indiana third, with $514,958. Minnesota's sales amounted to $281,009. Louisiana has only four commercial springs; they produced 2,312,000 gallons.

Maine's output of mineral waters, from 29 springs, decreased 277,370 gallons, but on account of high prices increased in value over 1909, the figures for 1910 being 1,238,171 gallons and $404,529. Of Wisconsin's mineral waters, 2,161,782 gallons were used in the manufacture of "soft drinks." Pennsylvania has 44 springs and produced 2,536,337 gallons, valued at $221,635.

The mineral water trade, says Mr. Matson, continues to be prosperous, although there was a decrease in output of about 4 per cent as compared with 1909. The future outlook is good.

The importation of mineral waters in 1910 was 3,506,303 gallons, valued at $682,138.

Mr. Matson's report discusses the industry by states and gives a list of all producing springs. A copy may be had on application to the director, United States geological survey, Washington, D. C.

Outlines Plans for Better "Hell Gate"

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 22.—Suggestions for improving the "Gate of Hell" were outlined this afternoon before the National Woman Suffrage convention by Miss Mary Johnston, the author, of Richmond, Va. Miss Johnston prefaced her suggestions by quotations from Tertullian, likening her sex to the entrance to the infernal regions. In part she said:

"Woman," exclaims St. Thomas Aquinas, "is a rapidly growing weed, an imperient being. Her body attains maturity more rapidly than man's only because it is of less value, and nature is engaged less in her making. Women are born to be eternally maintained under the yoke of their lords and masters who are endowed by nature with superiority in every respect, and therefore destined to rule."

"Woman," exclaims Tertullian, "ought to go about clad in mourning and in rage, your eyes filled with tears of remorse, to make us forget that you have been mankind's destruction! Woman, you are the gate of hell."

Plans for Improvement.

"What I wish to do for a few minutes is gravely to consider how we can improve the 'Gate of Hell.' Architecturally speaking, it is a matter of carrying aloft the wicket which has done duty for so many ages, of enlarging and adorning it, of giving it height, nobility and splendor, of achieving in short, a lofty and beautiful portal. Tertullian, of course, was content with a somewhat low and narrow gate, carefully planted in the shade. But times change and I submit that even so-called an institution as well-gate, shows a tendency to change too."

"We all have our ideas as to how the new gate should be built. Its general appearance, beauty and utility. Probably every woman in this audience is busy nowadays making a mental blueprint of a new hell gate. I have the floor, however, and I am going to give, very roughly, my own blue print."

Miss Johnston described how she thought the new gate might differ from the old, "physically, in sweep and power, fine and strong grain, clean, noble lines, mentally, in education, the adornment of mind; spiritually, with the nobler and wider heart, the true mother and lover of humanity."

Built Without Hands.

"Keeping the old name for a moment, we may say that the production of a newer and greater 'hell gate' differs from other architectural propositions. Gates of stone and marble are made from without. 'Hell gate' will be built without hands, and the architect lodges within. She can do what she will, and now the thing of all others to be desired is that she will it. The time has passed when indifference must be tolerated.

"Women must arouse themselves to action; the crying needs of the time demand it, and with the ballot in our hands and with the will to produce better conditions, our achievements will be unsurpassed."

NEGRO KILLED

out of a house across the street and opened fire, instantly killing City Attorney Beavers, and wounded Oliver and Thompson, all of whom were passing at the time, and had taken no part in the trouble.

Suddeth took refuge in a nearby house which was bombarded with guns and revolvers by several white men. The house was set afire and Suddeth fled. He was shot, being fatally injured. He was taken to the water tank, a rope placed about his neck and he was swung up. It was then decided, however, that to kill him would precipitate a general race war and he was cut down and taken to a vacant house.

Town in State of Terror.

Coweta is in a state of terror tonight and it is feared that an outbreak is inevitable. There are 1,200 people in Coweta, one-third of whom are negroes. The country is populated largely by negroes, and it was stated tonight that if they organized they could bring 2,000 men into town before morning.

Negro emissaries have hurried out to surrounding settlements with the avowed intention of bringing enough of their people here to wipe the town off the map. They declare they will set fire to every house in the town. The sheriffs of Wagoner, Muskogee and Tulsa counties have sent help to Coweta, and every means possible will be used to prevent an outbreak.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 22.—While what militia that can be raised tonight is being rushed from here by special train to the assistance of the white people of Coweta, large numbers of armed negroes from surrounding points are hastening to that town to assist in the fight with the whites.

Besides the killing of the city attorney and the lynching of his slayer, a number of both races have been shot in the fights, according to reports received here.

The negro population is infuriated by the killing of Suddeth. They sent out runners to all nearby towns, several of which are exclusively negro settlements, to call them to aid in fighting the whites and to make good their threat to wipe the town off the map before morning.

Clean floors and doors with GOLD DUST

Add a little Gold Dust to your mopping water, and you can clean your floors, doors and woodwork in a jiffy. Gold Dust is such a superior cleanser that it does the hardest part of the work, and requires little scrubbing. It does the work you simply aid it.

Gold Dust will do the work better than soap or any other cleaner, making your woodwork look like new.

For cleaning anything and everything about the house nothing is so quickly effective as Gold Dust. It's the cleansing marvel of the age!

Do not use lye, ammonia or kerosene with Gold Dust. Gold Dust is all desirable cleaning qualities in a perfectly harmless and safe form.

"NATURAL" AND OTHER RIGHTS

A LONG time ago the framers of the Declaration of Independence wrote this: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Since this was written there have been innumerable propagandists of various doctrines who have maintained that a varied assortment of "rights" are just as "inalienable," just as "inherent," or just as "natural" as those listed in the Declaration of Independence.

The socialists, for instance, claim that every man has a "natural right" to the whole product of his labor, even though that product is the result of the laborer's effort combined with the machinery and buildings provided by others. They oppose the payment of interest on the ground that it is "inherently wrong." The single-taxers would also increase the list of "natural rights." They consider the proposition self-evident that every man has a "natural right" to land and its products.

Various other economic crusaders would increase the list of "natural rights" according to their taste. Certain woman suffragists hold that woman has a "natural right" to vote, certain free traders hold that men have a "natural right" to buy in the lowest market and sell in the highest, certain trade unionists hold that every man has a "natural right" to a job paying a fair wage. It is not the object here to go into the numerous propositions that are claimed to be "naturally right," but simply to consider the question what do people actually mean when they say that a certain thing is a "natural right?"

When an advocate of "votes for women" says that woman has a "natural right" to vote she says in effect, "I believe it to be fitting and proper for woman to have the ballot, a woman ought to be allowed to vote." To me the proposition is self-evident. In other words, when such an advocate tells of the "natural right" of women to vote she does nothing more than express her own state of mind, her own opinion, in regard to the subject. She is offering no argument. If a hearer is not already convinced of the advisability of adopting woman suffrage, or of the merits of any other question, he cannot be convinced by having the phrase "natural rights" hurled at him, the one who does so is merely reiterating an opinion already expressed. If, on the other hand, a hearer is given the various facts and arguments demonstrating that woman suffrage, or any other question, is socially expedient and desirable he probably will come to believe in the rightness of the proposition presented to him.

The German Emperor believes in the "divine right" of kings to rule the people; the German Social-Democrats believe in the "natural right of the people" to rule themselves. Nothing will ever be gained if the two merely hurl "natural rights" into each other's faces, the superior proposition must win, if at all, by being shown to be more expedient and more advantageous than the opposing one.

Numerous other illustrations might be cited to show that "natural rights" or "divine rights" are used to justify the present order of things as well as to justify innovations. The single-taxers' "natural right" to land is matched by the assertion of President George F. Baer, of coal-strike fame, that the settlement of the labor dispute in the anthracite district should be left to "those Christian gentlemen to whom God, in his infinite wisdom, has given the control of the coal fields." The framers of the Declaration of Independence asserted that all men have an inalienable right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," slaveholders from the time of Aristotle to that of Jefferson Davis justified slavery by an appeal to divine ordinance. Men are prone to interpret long-standing legal rights as being "natural." Interests become vested.

People are of different types or mind. On the one hand there are the progresssive, the radicals and the nihilists. On the other hand there are the conservatives, the standpatners and the reactionaries. What seems natural to a person of one type of mind seems quite unnatural to one of another type. How then, is it possible for the various types to get together and effect a compromise? Certainly not by appeal to everything that may be considered "natural." It is possible only by an appeal to reason rather than to sentiment and to facts rather than to feelings.

Questions can be settled finally only when experience settles them. The test that any new proposition must stand is: considering everything, does it seem to be the best for society? Is it socially expedient? The test that any old usage must stand is: all things considered and in the long run, has it worked well?

The interests of the social organization are paramount. Every suggested innovation and every established custom is subject to the criterion: does it serve the best interests of society? The appeal to "natural rights" is futile.

WONDERS NEVER CEASE

CHINA, the nation of the standpatter, par excellence, has become insurgent. The oldest empire that the world has ever known wants to be a republic. Think of it! The Flowery Kingdom to have universal suffrage! Votes for Chinese women!

Does this presage that Rhode Island is in danger of becoming insurgent? Does it suggest that even the Herald-Telegraph is to become progressive?

OPEN-PARLIAMENT

Wintery weather will soon inevitably close the orchestra concerts at Stratton park. It will be some eight months before the Midland band will begin its musical entertainments for the summer. Now, is there not some way that these concerts can be profitably continued through the winter months? Why not secure an auditorium somewhere in the city for band or orchestra concerts on Sunday afternoons? A small admission fee could be charged to pay expenses.

The large audiences that have attended the Sunday concerts at Stratton park, even in threatening or unpleasant weather, is good evidence of the popularity of these concerts. Why not, if necessary, circulate subscription papers for Sunday concerts at, say, Temple theater? Would not such entertainments, well advertised, help boom Colorado Springs as a winter resort? There is a large class of people who reside on the street car lines who would hail with delight such entertainments at a moderate admission fee. And there are winter tourists here, also.

FROM OTHER PENS

A QUESTION FOR LA FOLLETTE.
From the Chicago Record-Herald.
How does La Follette expect to swing the bald-headed vote?

COLLEGE HABITS.

From the Philadelphia Press.
The increasing sobriety of student life in American colleges and universities is recorded by the extension of the Harvard union, the general student club modeled after Houston Hall at the University of Pennsylvania, of all spirituous liquors, even at private entertainments given by students and attendance bodies in its rooms. This is the general rule at all colleges and universities with any building used socially by students on college grounds. Columbia has just forbidden smoking on the grounds of the university, except in certain designated rooms. President Schurman at Cornell at the opening of that university drew public attention to the fact that all fraternities houses there were occupied under a rule and pledge that no use of spirituous liquors should be permitted in them. This is the rule in many colleges and universities and of many fraternities tends more and more to recognize the wisdom and necessity of college students, partly all of them intemperate, practicing restraint in all these matters.

WE'RE ALL "SOCIALISTS."

From the Hartford Courant.
There is a lot of loose talk about "Socialism." Some of the most active advocates of what they call Socialism are among the bitterest enemies of society. It is those and what they profess to stand for that the average man of industry and order opposes. The fact is that we are all Socialists, and to be so long as we have society. It is Socialism to maintain free public schools at general expense. The police, paid for out of the common purse, represent an incident of Socialism. Every time the fire department turns out it goes to the expense of all. It stands for the common cause. Here in Hartford we rank high up in Socialism by reason of conducting our own water works. That's something that other communities shudder at the thought of, and, incidentally, it may be remarked that the worst shuddering is done by those who now get the profits of the private system. But the point we have in mind is that this subject of Socialism is a question of degree, not of kind. We are all Socialists and must be until we strike for the woods and live alone. It is only how far shall this scheme of mutual aid and cooperation be carried. Shall we throw away all individuality or shall we retain our general initiative and independence and construe the Golden Rule for ourselves instead of having others construe it for us?

SAVING SOULS BY ADVERTISING.

From the New York Evening Post.
The mail brings us a circular in which an enthusiastic and pious advertising agent, who has had great success in promoting sales of soap and cigarettes and whisks, offers his services to the churches. He proposes to show them how to use "Built-Up Gospel Advertising." The great obstacle to religious progress, he explains, is not lack of faith but want of push. The churches have valuable wares to sell but do not get them on the market by the methods used in up-to-date business. Advertising is the way to get religious truth just the devil and his tools into the hearts and minds of the ignorant, the kodaks, and deluded. The circular gives two or three examples of posters and placards which the agent commends to church authorities. In one of them a well-known knock-down cut of patent medicine advertising is faced with Scripture texts in place of appeals to purify your blood, and this is recommended as

SAVING SOULS BY ADVERTISING.

There is no reason to question the good faith of this advertising proposal to the churches. Its author includes his photograph, described yours for "pious" and writing throughout with a blend of piety and business that it would be very hard to affect and that seems to be sincere. Yet one not hardened to this sort of thing could not help feeling that some of the expressions of the circular were either jocular (and in very bad taste) or blasphemous. The sort of evangelism that this age needs is the adaptation of the art of advertising and the science of successful salesmanship to the religious work of soul-winning. You can get results for heaven if you make as strong a bid for souls as you do for sales. A national gospel advertising bureau will drum up business for all the churches. It is needless to quote further. In the mind of this solicitor, it is evident that advertising, like goodness, is profitable both for the life that now is and for that which is to come.

The matter would be scarcely worth referring to were it not related to certain tendencies and practices in modern religious activity. Churches unquestionably do advertise more than once, by custom, and most of their appeals to the public are such as to be deemed as entirely legitimate. Notices of religious services, printed in newspapers or hung up in hotels or displayed on church edifices, give useful information, especially to strangers. And it is also undeniably proper for churches to seek the aid of publicity for religious causes and humane movements in which they or their organizations are interested. Going much beyond all this, however, are certain efforts to advertise religion in a clamorous way, and to draw indifferent people to the churches by flamboyant appeals and sensational methods. Our advertising agent need not flatter himself that he is a pioneer. The kind of thing he advocates has been attempted in more than one city, and it has produced "results," too, though the amount of ultimate good in them might require a careful analysis to determine.

Sunflower Philosophy

This truth is sound as virgin ore, so salt it down as such. The man who talks forevermore is bound to talk too much. The silent man has many friends, who think him smooth as grease, and if in season he unbinds, and starts to talk every word, though he were a sage, and say, "He is a fooloo-bird, the wonder of this age!" The talkaholic has no friends at all; folks hate to see him come, they say to him: "Go hire a hall address the deaf and dumb!" I know a hundred idle men who once were drawing pay; they limbered up their jaws and then talked their jobs away. I've known some dames, in other days, who talked their husbands blind, until they sought more pleasant ways, and jumped the beastly grind. I know a churchyard where the stones that dot the windswept heath are piled above the crumbling bones of fellows talked to death. If all the time we waste in talk were used in cutting ice, no homeless men the streets would walk—all men would have the price!

THE DAILY CHIT CHAT

Sometimes I wonder how anyone ever dares to get married.

And that sometimes is after reading in the magazines and newspapers some of the articles about the impossibility of being happy though married.

"Why I am not married," says my wife left me. "Why I wouldn't marry my husband if I had my life to live over again," "Why I beat my husband with the frying pan every morning," "How to keep up appearances even if you hate your husband,"—I quote from memory, so these may not be entirely exact, but I assure you they are very similar to the titles of the magazine articles with which we are constantly bombarded.

And every time a newspaper writer runs out of other material she takes a long breath and proceeds to warn her readers of some snag in the matrimonial river that even the most skillful pilot has a bare chance of avoiding. I know, you see, for I do it myself.

And the trouble with most of these warnings and prophecies is that they are true. But one of the greatest lessons that life gradually teaches us is that no one truth is the whole truth, and that one thing may be true and that another almost opposite may also be true.

And that applies to the question of matrimony as well as to any other.

Of course there is no doubt at all that marriage is not the rosy mountain top existence which courtship paints it.

But what of that? Was ever any pleasure, any undertaking, any spotless perfect thing anticipated painted in? And yet would one who had that account to have hung back from all pleasures and all the undertakings?

To be sure, one must bring infinite tolerance and forbearance to the marriage relation in order to make it a happy one.

But what of that? Is there any family relation—brother and sister, father and son, mother and daughter—but requires tolerance and forbearance to make it happy? And yet one would not wish on account of that to be a recluse or a hermit.

Do you know I haven't a doubt that the woman who tells, in the magazine article, why she has ditched her man, her husband if she and her life to live over again would probably go back to him if she had a third life after the second.

Now, perhaps you think I'm overestimating the effect of all this magazine and newspaper talk.

Perhaps I am. And yet I have heard more than one girl say, "Why, I positively am afraid to get married." You read so much about divorces and married people being unhappy.

They forget, you see, that the reason one reads so much more about unhappy married people than the other kind, is that everyday happiness makes tame reading, and that newspaper readers would be dissatisfied instead of if they read about Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So, who are who are who can divorce the other first, they should find a list of people who are happy though married in their morning paper.

Cheer up, young folks. Much of life that seems complex when you talk too much about it grows simpler when you come to living it.

Cultivate forbearance and tolerance, get the habit of letting each day take care of its own troubles and a depressing not to expect too much, and I have not a doubt but that some day you and the other half of you may stand on the crest of the hill singing that sweet old folks' love song—

John Anderson, my Jo, John
We clamb the hill together
And monte a cannie dale John
We've had wi' the another
Now we maun totter down John
But hand in hand we'll go
And sleep in the gutter at the foot
John Anderson, my Jo

Disease and Its Cure

By EDDY WOLFF.

PLEURISY

The lungs are surrounded by a skin or membrane, called the pleura. When, for any reason, this membrane becomes inflamed, the malady is known as pleurisy.

Pleurisy occurs generally as a result of exposure to cold. Occasionally it follows pneumonia, and sometimes it is the result of injuries, which in some manner injure this delicate membrane. Pleurisy not infrequently comes as an effect of rheumatism.

Still with all these exciting causes, the greater percentage of cases occur as the result of a tubercular or consumptive condition. In those persons who are subject to recurrent attacks of pleurisy, the cause is nearly always found to be consumption. Whenever pleurisy has attacked the same individual twice within a few months, or even within a year or two it will prove a wise step to have the lungs examined by a competent physician.

In the dry form of pleurisy the inflammation is not great. The malady may be arrested and the progress stopped. The liquid which flows from the ailing tissue may then be absorbed by the blood and thus removed from the body. Complete recovery may take place and when properly treated the dry form of pleurisy usually leaves no ill after-effects.

Another form of pleurisy may exclude the characteristic liquid secretion. When small in quantity this exudate may be absorbed, also. But if in great quantity it may make hard and gummy and persist for years. When this occurs surgical means are necessary for the complete removal of the obstruction.

The gummy cake on the lining of the lungs had best be removed, as it may later lead to consumption.

The symptoms of pleurisy are fever, stitch in the side, dry, unproductive cough and uneasiness. The pain is at first severe and is exaggerated by every movement of the body. The breathing is usually difficult and shallow.

Pleurisy in healthy people can often be avoided by keeping the body warm and dry.

POLICE ADMINISTRATION

Long Term for Police Commissioners Recommended—Evils of Kaleidoscopic Changes Certainty of Policy Needed

By LEONARD FELIX FULD, Examiner, Municipal Civil Service Commission, New York City (Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

"Whenever I do my duty I make enemies and only by neglecting my duty can I make friends. This was not the wall of a dyspeptic pessimist but the frank statement of a clean-cut, intelligent, and outspoken lieutenant of police. The novelty of the remark caused me to ponder over it.

In every walk of life the man who does his duty conscientiously makes enemies. A man who makes no enemies in life is a moral coward, who has no purpose in life and accomplishes no results. Only women who are 99.75-100 per cent whole-hearted goodness can go through life making only friends and no enemies. The policeman's life is one in which a man doubtless makes more enemies than in any other walk of life. No man likes the hand that jails him and deprives him of his liberty. Further conversation with this lieutenant of police, however, convinced me that he was proud of the enemies which he made among the criminal classes. He was not referring to that class of enemies. What he dreaded and what discouraged him at times was the fact that by doing his duty he incurred the enmity of his superiors.

He told me that even this class of enemies would not cause him any annoyance if he could be certain of the attitude of his superiors with reference to official policy, however, are the bane of the policeman's life. If he could only be certain that the police commissioner of today will be the police commissioner of tomorrow and next year and five years from today, he could carry out the administrative policy of his commissioner conscientiously and with devotion. Under present conditions, however, every prudent police officer must take care that he does not carry out the policy of the police commissioner of today with such devotion as to incur the enmity of the new commissioner who may be at the head of the police department tomorrow. Nor is this reference to a kaleidoscopic change in administration metaphorical. In New York city in particular and also in other American cities changes in administration take place so suddenly that statements made of policy are liable to be changed much of our American problem would be solved if the head of the police force had a term of at least 10 years and a tenure during good behavior. At present the police commissioner's term is either two years or four years and his tenure is at the pleasure of the mayor.

If the police commissioner is given a long term and a definite tenure he is not only enabled to carry out a definite administrative policy and to secure and retain the loyalty of his subordinates by possessing the ability to reward efficient service and to punish inefficient service, but there is also secured a consistent direction of the police department. Under present-day conditions in America the head of the police department is never a police expert. He is selected from civil life for business, social, or political reasons. He seldom has any peculiar fitness for the position, excepting in the mind of the man who appoints him and he never has any expert knowledge of police administration. The excellent German system of promoting an experienced police officer of a smaller city to the police commissioner-ship of a larger city, has never been tried in this country. The police commissioner were given a long term and a definite tenure this would at least remove the present day condition that the police commissioner has no knowledge of police administration when he assumes the duties of his office and that he is turned out of office as soon as he has learned the details of the business. With a long term and a definite tenure the city

Seven Valiant Seamen

History has always attached much importance to the Number Seven. "Of all numbers there is one which commanded in a higher degree, the esteem and reverence of mankind." The Gazette has taken this charmed number, and has woven into stories on a variety of subjects a Series of Sevens, beginning each Monday and continuing during the week.

NO. 1 SIR RICHARD GRENVILLE

The most valiant of men have been nursed by the sea. A sea-going life, with the great dangers that attend educate men to courage, and not only that, but in a profound sense of duty. The life of a mariner is full of care and responsibility. The sailor must be constantly on the watch by night and by day. History is full of the great deeds of valor done by the sea heroes of England.

Take the case of the last flight of Sir Richard Grenville, who was vice admiral of the fleet in Queen Elizabeth's reign. He was sent out to the Azores to intercept the Spanish fleet, the Philip of Spain, being apprised of the adventure, dispatched a powerful fleet, consisting of 83 ships, to frustrate the attempt and to bring the gold ships into port.

The ships met, six English against 83 Spaniards. The superiority of the latter was so great that five of the English ships under Lord Howard were compelled to give way. Sir Richard Grenville remained in the Revenge, the old ship in which Sir Francis Drake had fought the Armada up the English channel. He would not give way. He resisted the whole Spanish fleet.

Sir Richard had only a few hundred men with him, but they were each as brave as himself. For 12 hours the Spanish ships poured their shot into the doomed Englishman. They boarded her 15 times, and were repulsed with determined bravery. Sir Richard was twice wounded. He was carried below and received another shot in the head, while the surgeon who was dressing the wound was killed by his side. In his helpless state he advised that the ship should be sunk rather than yield; but most of the crew opposed this, and the Revenge struck—the only ship yet taken by the Spaniards. But she was so terribly injured by the shot poured into her from all sides that she could not be kept afloat and went down in two days.

The death of the English admiral was as noble as his life. Here," he said, "I, Richard Grenville, die with a joyful and quiet mind, for that I have ended my life as a true soldier ought to do, fighting for his country, queen, religion and honor, my soul willingly departing from the body, leaving behind the lasting fame of having behaved as every valiant soldier is in his duty bound to do." And so passed away the brave Admiral Grenville.

The circumstances of the bravery shown by Grenville and his crew have been enshrined in immortal verse by Tennyson. The defense of the Revenge has been compared to that of the 800 at Thermopylae, and the lines in Campbell's famous ode were originally: "Where Grenville, boast of freedom, fell."

Your manly hearts shall glow." Mr. Froude tells us that the gallant defense of the Revenge "struck a deeper terror, though it was but the action of a single ship, into the hearts of the Spanish people; it dealt a more deadly blow upon their fame and moral strength than the destruction of the Armada itself, and in the direct results which arose from it, it was scarcely less disastrous to them."

Sir Richard is of special interest to Americans, by reason of his having been a cousin of Sir Walter Raleigh. He made two trips to the Virginia colonies, and upon his return from the second he fell in with a Spanish ship, homeward bound from St. Domingo which attacked him, but was herself overpowered and captured. Grenville and a party of his men, not having any boat, went to board her on a raft hastily made of some old chests, which fell to pieces—just as they reached the Spaniards.

Tomorrow—STEPHEN DECATUR

At least enjoy the services of an experienced police commissioner during the latter half of his term.

Every American municipality ought to improve its system of police administration so that the remark of the lieutenant whom we have quoted may be changed to read: "Whenever I do my duty I make enemies among the citizens, and friends among my superiors, and by neglecting my duty I may make friends among the citizens but I shall incur the enmity of my superior officers." If efficient police protection is desired, every municipality must not only strive for this result, but it must also see to it that the police officer's official friends and official enemies have as much power and as much influence over his actions as his friends and his enemies in private life wield today.

DUG-DRILLED WELLS VERY DANGEROUS

Lately Acquired Fever Not an Uncommon Result.

From Water-Supply Paper 122, United States Geological Survey.

Almost any community in which wells have been drilled can boast of a number of combination dug and drilled wells. The owners congratulate themselves on their wisdom in utilizing an old dug well 20 or 30 feet in depth and drilling through the bottom of this to a good flow of deep water. The cost of drilling that 20 or 30 feet has been saved, certainly an economy worth considering. As a matter of fact, this combined dug and drilled well is a particularly dangerous type. It may readily breed malarial fever or even typhoid fever, which is more prevalent in the country than even in the overcrowded cities, in spite of the supposed pure water supply of nearly all farming sections. Such a well is all the more dangerous because it is far from being safe. Although the water encountered by the deep well may be perfectly pure at the start, contamination may take place almost immediately by the entrance especially after rains of seepage water into the open well and thence into the casing of the drilled well. The remedies are

BAPTISTS OF STATE MEET HERE TONIGHT

The advance guard of the delegates to the annual meeting of the Colorado Baptists struck Colorado Springs yesterday afternoon. Others are expected this morning, and by the time the meeting opens this evening it is estimated that there will be fully 300 visitors in the city.

This evening's program begins at 7:30 o'clock, at the First Baptist church, where all the meetings will be held, and consists of a conference of the ministers. The Rev. E. T. Cassell will be in charge of the praise service. The Rev. B. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, Louisville, Ky., will give an address on "Christ's Response to Modern Thought."

Of the prominent visitors who will take part in the program during the week are: Dr. L. C. Barnes of New York, the Rev. W. T. Davis of La Junta, the Rev. L. H. Hoffman of Loveland, the Rev. George L. Burroughs of Pueblo and the Rev. A. J. Finch of Denver.

MONMOUTH RESIDENT SPEAKS OF MURDERS

The people of Monmouth, Ill., would make short work of the murderer of the Dawson family, according to W. S. Van Valkenberg, hardware merchant of that city, who is a visitor in Colorado Springs, stopping at the Antlers hotel.

"They are still excited over the murders," Mr. Van Valkenberg said. "The city has a population of about 10,000 persons, and the murdered family was well known."

"The authorities are as much at sea on the proposition as the ones of Colorado Springs. They found an electric flash light and a piece of gas pipe, but they do not bring the officers any closer home. We all feel certain though that the man who did the killing in Colorado Springs, was connected with the murder at Monmouth and Ellsworth Kan."

Mr. Van Valkenberg was well acquainted with the members of the Dawson family.

LABOR COMMITTEE HERE

The grievance committee from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen arrived in this city yesterday afternoon and today will meet with Colorado Midland officials to sign the new schedule of wages which resulted from the recent conference in Denver between the committee and President Valley of the Midland.

The committee then will ask for another conference with General Manager Waters of the Midland Terminal and Short Line roads. It is probable that the conference will be held Wednesday. Mr. Waters declares that he will not refuse to meet with the committee, although he will not accede to its demands.

Excellent highways are made in some parts of Florida by covering sand roads once a year with leaves of the long-leaved pine trees.

Deaths and Funerals

Mrs. Benjamin Shove of New York city, mother of Eugene P. Shove, 1229 Wood avenue, died at her home yesterday morning, according to word received here last night. Mr. Shove left about a week ago for the east to be at the bedside of his mother.

Word was received here late last night of the death of Elizabeth Kramer, daughter of Dr. Frederick F. Kramer of Denver, well known here. Dr. Kramer was to have preached the sermon at the Colorado college funeral services here yesterday afternoon, but not appear on account of the illness of his daughter. Professor Moten leaves this morning for Denver to attend the funeral services.

PROMINENT COUPLE HERE ON THEIR HONEYMOON

Mr. and Mrs. William White, Jr., Denver society's latest newweds, are visiting in Colorado Springs, stopping at the Antlers hotel, on their honeymoon. They expect to be here three or four days.

The groom is the son of J. Branton White of St. David's, near Philadelphia, a retired railroad man and prominent in Philadelphia financial circles. The bride was Miss Emma Phillips of Denver. The marriage took place Saturday afternoon in Denver, and they left a few hours later for this city.

The couple are trying to keep their presence in this city a secret. Even the father of the groom did not know they were coming here, and got a ticket for Pueblo, although it was his intention to visit Colorado Springs before returning east.

Mr. and Mrs. White, Jr. expect to make a tour of Colorado and other western states before going to Philadelphia, where they will make their home.

SPRINGS AND PUEBLO ON BETTER FRATERNAL BASIS

One good result of the Dry Farming congress has come in a most unexpected way, and that is in the development of a more fraternal spirit between Pueblo and Colorado Springs. Pueblo gave the congress and the efforts of the business men better support than any other large community in the state, and the Colorado Springs people appreciate it.

B. W. Marsh of Montrose county was in the city yesterday and had something to say about this. He is one of the wealthiest ranch owners in that great region.

"I tell you what Colorado Springs and Pueblo ought to do," said he. "They should get together on a business agreement of some kind that will tend to draw to them the business interests of the southern and western portions of the state. If they will start jobbing houses and their financial men will encourage farmers, merchants and stockmen by handling their securities, making proper loans and otherwise binding the great business interests of the southern region to them, they can take from Denver a most valuable business. There is no reason why western slope people should ride by these big towns when they are trading or doing business. Your time is ripe now for a joint movement that will help the towns."

As backing up what Mr. Marsh said, there came in yesterday to Secretary John T. Burns the following letter from J. H. Jenkins, general secretary of the Pueblo Commercial club:

Pueblo Thanks Congress.
Hon. John T. Burns, Secretary Dry Farming Congress.

Dear Mr. Burns:—In behalf of the membership of this club, and especially those who enjoyed the pleasure of attending the Dry Farming congress during the week, I wish to thank you and through you the officers of the congress for the many courtesies extended our people.

We have heard only the highest commendation of the good work done by your congress, and can predict an era of prosperity and development in our dry farming region as a result of the good work you have done in providing the very instructive sessions for the people of Colorado.

With best wishes, I remain,
J. H. JENKINS,
General Secretary.

Mr. March came to Colorado Springs yesterday to see Secretary Burns and personally contradict the statement attributed by a Denver newspaper to Secretary Deland of the Denver chamber of commerce, that Mr. Burns was dismissed from the secretaryship of the Colorado State Commercial association. He was a member of the board of directors at the time, and he says that Mr. Burns resigned voluntarily and much to the regret of a majority of the members of the board. Further, a year later, after the unpleasantness that came into the association at that time had died down, he and others made Mr. Burns an offer to back him as secretary of a new organization of the kind, but Burns refused to undertake it.

AS SHE SAW THE NOTES

When my daughter was 4 years old she sat gazing at the notes on a piece of music, when she suddenly looked up and said: "Mamma, here's a lot of little boys on a wire fence," and, looking down at it, said, after a moment's thought, "and some of 'em got hats on."

Dr. Rall Speaks During College Vesper Service

Dr. Harriess Franklin Rall, president of the Cliff School of Theology in Denver, the theological school of the Methodist Episcopal church in Colorado, delivered the sermon at the Colorado college vesper services in Perkins hall yesterday afternoon, taking as his theme, "Kingship Lies in a Life of Service." His text was taken from Revelations 1:6, "And he made us to be a kingdom."

He pointed out the various conceptions of the rule of kingship and authority that have prevailed in the world since the time of Caesar's authority, which was that of an unrestricted despot, to the present kings of Europe, who are kings only in name, and the great kings of finance in this country. He said that none of these represents the truest type of kingship. He declared:

"Kingship is a life in which the individual is not ruled, is not a slave of his own passions, but is living by doing Christian service to his fellow men and overcomes what the world gives him by what he gives it."

TAKEN FROM DEATH CELL

George King, who was sentenced to be hanged this week for the murder of Peter Jackson at Ramah, has been taken from the death cell. Today he will be given 1000 prison work.

GIVES FIRST ADDRESS EVER MADE BY WOMAN ON TOP OF PIKES PEAK

The first address made on the summit of Pikes Peak by a woman, and the second made by anyone who made the ascent especially for this purpose, yesterday afternoon was delivered by the Rev. Lottie D. Crosby, the Universalist minister from Ohio, to an audience of about 45. The Rev. Mrs. Crosby made the trip to the summit on the afternoon train, leaving at 1:13 o'clock, and immediately upon reaching the top, chose a spot in front of the summit house, where she delivered a sermon on "Do Thyself No Harm."

The topic was suggested by a newspaper article on self-made men, which said "self-made men are oftentimes unmade men." She showed that, although to be a self-made man is a great achievement, the process of making often leads the person to unmake some principle, such as honesty or integrity. Her plea was that all men should do themselves no material harm, but preserve that within, which is greater than material success.

Last night Mrs. Crosby delivered a sermon on "The Brotherhood of Humanity" at Union Chapel, Roswell.

PITMAN'S ATTORNEY AGAINST COMPROMISE

"I can see no reason why Robert Pitman should agree to any item of the stipulation prepared by the federal officers, Saturday," yesterday said M. W. Purcell, assistant district attorney, who has been acting as Pitman's attorney for the last year or more. He further stated his belief that Pitman will refuse the demands of the federal officers who are here to get aside the divorce granted Robert Pitman from Lucinda Pitman, last February, and that he will not deliver young Robert to his mother's custody. Mr. Purcell maintains that every item of the stipulation which secured Pitman's divorce, was absolutely true and can be verified positively.

"Now that the federal officers and Ben Thompson have started this mess, I am going to see it through," said Mr. Purcell. "They have made groundless charges against an innocent man, Robert Pitman, and they've got to prove every one of them. If, as I doubt, it becomes evident that crimes have been committed in this case, then my public office will take cognizance of them, and the guilty persons prosecuted. I will not handle a prosecution myself, if there be any, but one higher than I will have charge of it. Inasmuch as I have represented both Robert Pitman and Mrs. Lucinda Pitman, in a civil capacity, it would not be seemly for me to have charge of any criminal proceedings."

"Personally, I think that the federal officers here are merely perpetrating a bluff and are trying to frighten Robert Pitman into compliance with their demands."

Mr. Purcell alleges fraud on the part of Ben Thompson, and says that the federal officers might better investigate conditions in Oklahoma than here, in connection with the case.

It is the assistant district attorney's opinion that a most salacious scandal will be revealed, involving many persons, both here and elsewhere, in the event of a fight. In all probability, the fight will commence Friday morning.

Foreign Delegates to Congress Are Chummy

Herr von Mendenstern and Count Nemes, the Hungarian delegates to the International Dry Farming congress, and S. McIntosh, the Australian delegate, became quite "chummy" while here and have been seeing the sights together since Saturday they took the Short Line Cripple Creek trip and returned greatly delighted. Yesterday they went up the Peak on the Cog road, and last evening continued their travels. In an interview they stated that they regard the congress as having been the most practical agricultural convention that they have ever attended. Mr. McIntosh goes east to visit the department of agriculture, but the two Hungarians go to Cheyenne, Logan, Utah, and all the agricultural colleges in the west. Count Nemes expects to go to Japan in January.

A Strange Story

Argyle, Mich.—Mrs. Wm. H. Carson, in a letter from Argyle, says: "I was almost wild with pain in my head, and other severe pains, due to womanly troubles. Cardui gave me great relief at once. Further use of Cardui raised me from my bed of agony. Cardui saved my life, and I can't be thankful enough for what it did for me. Whether seriously sick, or simply ailing, take Cardui, the woman's tonic. As a general tonic for women, to improve the appetite and build up the constitution, Cardui is in a class by itself. Those who have used it say it does the work it relates to. Try it. Your druggist asks it."

CHICAGO MAN FEARS FOR SAFETY OF MISSING W.F.E.

Police authorities have been asked to aid in finding Mrs. D. J. Hauptman, of Chicago, who has been missing from Denver since October 11. The husband, who is president of the Boulevard Clock and Suit company, Chicago, has made frequent trips here during the last week, looking for her. He expected to meet his wife in Denver when he arrived there a week ago Sunday. The missing woman spent the summer in horseback riding and outdoor life generally in the Colorado mountains.

Hauptman fears his wife has been a victim of foul play. She left the Albany hotel in Denver October 11 to make some investments in coal lands near Canon City and to join a round-up party from the Verde ranch near Texas creek for the purpose of securing material for literary work which she had expected to do this winter. She had considerable money with her when she on the lonely ride from Texas creek to the ranch.

Fears for Wife's Safety.

Hauptman bases his fears for his wife's safety on the fact that during the four months she has been riding in the Colorado mountains, there was not a day until after October 11 that he failed to receive a letter from her. On several occasions she rode 15 miles to mail the daily letter.

She spent the summer riding in northwestern and central Colorado. With two horses, but unaccompanied by a guide, she rode more than 500 miles. Several weeks ago she returned to Denver, staying at the Albany hotel until October 11, when she set out for the Verde ranch. Hauptman cannot get into communication with that ranch.

He has made trips to Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Canon City in search of his wife. He now fears that she was held up on the road near Texas creek and perhaps murdered.

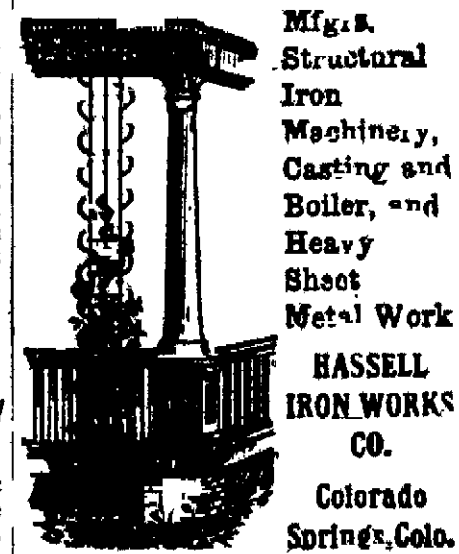

Mrs. Hauptman is 36 years old, although she is described as appearing to be not more than 19. She has dark brown hair, brown eyes, fair complexion, is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing 125 pounds, and said to be extremely dashing in appearance when attired in the dark gray riding habit she wears on her journeys in the mountains.

HOLLAND LINER SIGHTED FLYING DISTRESS SIGNAL

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The North German Lloyd steamer Kaiserin Augusta Victoria today signalled to the Browhead station that she had passed the Holland-Limer Sloterdyk 46 latitude 50.15 north, longitude 16 west, in a disabled condition. Sloterdyk had broken her crank shaft and required immediate assistance. Several vessels are proceeding to the rescue.

The Sloterdyk left Rotterdam October 18 for Boston and Philadelphia. Apparently when spoken by the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, she was about 300 miles off, the coast of Ireland.

COLORADO "GRADS" ATTEMPT TO CLEAR UP DENVER U. ROW

DENVER, Oct. 22.—The University of Colorado Alumni association has it in its power to cause a quarrel to be made in the present athletic strife that envelops the state's scholastic athletics. It can lift a veto on the Denver university when its athletic board at last formally severed athletic relations with the University of Denver. The authorities at Boulder are to be gratulated for turning over the reins of the entanglement to a body representative of the school that do more to settle the matter than the authorities themselves. The athletic representatives at Boulder are lined up to look at the matter theologically, as all college professors are to do, while their former charges will be a little more elastic in their views. The situation has simmered itself to whether or not the state university will send a courteous letter to Denver, asking for a restoration of athletics of the same tenor and dignity as the one which was sent declaring athletic relations off. That is all Denver demands.

The Denver management does not consider an offer to play games on the part of the state university equivalent to the request that athletic relations be resumed. It is the theory of the Denverites that a football game might be played this year, for instance, and not played next year, merely because Colorado offered to play the game. On the contrary, if athletic relations were to be restored, it would be incumbent on these two conference members to play regular games.

It has developed that a wordy altercation took place at the conference meeting a week ago, between George Manley, conference representative of Denver university, and George Norlin, faculty representative from Boulder. The case of the eligibility of John McFadden, Colorado football captain, to play the game, is said to have given rise to the words between the collegiate gentlemen. It has been alleged that McFadden is a professional, for having run foot races for money at Lafayette, July 4, 1908. Prof. Charles E. Smith, formerly conference representative from the Mines, is said to have been the "goat." Norlin reported, it is said, that Smith ruled, after an investigation, that McFadden was eligible. Manley said it is reported, that Smith did not tell him the same story. It is said that the two men engaged in a heated argument over the relative merits of the case.

The alumni of Colorado can do more to bury the hatchet and get the two teams together than any other agency. All Denver wants is the letter. Chancellor Henry A. Buchtel of the University of Denver, who was governor of Colorado at the time the breach was made, declared in his executive office at that time that Colorado would need to make the move to restore relations. And it is but just that they should. Denver is not concerned in the matter until an overture has been made by Colorado.

The friends of the state university believe the graduates will take steps to settle the estrangement amicably. At the next regular meeting, which is subject to the call of the president of the association, it is expected that the matter will be broached. At that time a proposed conference with the alumni of Denver will be discussed.

AST-TO-COAST FLIER REACHES SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 22.—C. P. Rogers, coast-to-coast aviator, arrived here shortly after noon today, making a 50-mile flight from San Marcos in 55 minutes.

Rogers ascended at 9:40 this morning from the cotton field two miles west of Kyle, where he was forced to land by a broken piston rod. Fifteen minutes later he was in the air again. He flew to San Marcos, miles away, and descended. He was in a reception there, and ascended in at 10:45 o'clock. He made no stops until he reached San Antonio, landing with a graceful glide in the parade grounds at Fort Sam Houston. This afternoon he made an exhibition flight over the city.

Rogers plans for his flight west are definite. He may follow the Southern Pacific tracks due west, or may fly Kerville, 57 miles northwest of San Antonio, out across the country to K Springs and then follow the Texas & Pacific to El Paso. The latter plan would give him a prairie trail, while by the former he would maintain air currents with which contend.

HUGH ROBINSON DECINES TO ATTEMPT RIVER FLIGHT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 22.—In reference to abandonment at Rock Island, Ill., the Minneapolis-to-New-Orleans flight by Hugh Robinson, the following statement was issued tonight from the local headquarters of the Mississippi River Flight association:

This association is at a loss to understand the arbitrary action of Aviator Hugh Robinson in abandoning his flight as close upon the heels of receiving $3,000 from Minneapolis, and he possessed of other river guarantees accepted by the Curtiss Exhibition company, with whom he is associated.

Undated and liberal conditions, including more than $5,000 guarantee, had not changed from the time such flights were accepted by Hugh Robinson and Jerome Fancoulli, general manager of the Curtiss Exhibition company.

We had, in addition to a written contract with the Curtiss Exhibition company, the expression of Mr. Fancoulli that his associates felt, in signing the contract, "under moral obligations to make the flight."

VANDERBILT'S COLTS IN DEAD HEAT FOR PRIZE

ARIZONA, Oct. 22.—At the Longchamps race today W. K. Vanderbilt's colt, Introse II, and his bay colt, Petuque, ran a dead heat for the Prix de Forest. The stake was valued at $10,000, the distance being one mile.

Minor League Owners Point to M. O'Toole

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Let a young minor league player sell for a phenomenal sum of money and that player immediately becomes the standard by which all other players in that league are gauged.

There's Marty O'Toole and Joe Benz, for instance. O'Toole is the fellow who was sold to the Pirates for $22,500. Benz is the young man who was purchased by President Comiskey of the White Sox, and who worked against the Detroit Tigers in three innings of the last game between the white-hot fellows and the crew of Jennings.

O'Toole last year pitched in the Western league. Nor was he so well thought of out there. Even now the fellows who run ball clubs in that part of the country are absolutely certain that he is worth no such sum of money as Barney Dreyfus paid. A good pitcher? Yes, they answer, but not a great one.

Well, soon after the sale of O'Toole this fellow Benz was placed on the market.

Manager Hugh Duffy made a trip out to Des Moines, for whom Benz pitched, and looked the youngster over. Then he visited some of the other cities of the circuit and finally landed in St. Joseph, Mo. That's where Jack Holland is the boss. And since Holland and Duffy are friends the manager of the White Sox naturally sought the minor league manager.

"About this Benz?" queried the Chicago manager.

"You will make no mistake," was the answer of Holland. "You know what O'Toole is. Well, when he left this league last year he wasn't anywhere near the pitcher that Benz is today."

"If O'Toole is worth anywhere near the price that Barney Dreyfus paid for him, then Benz is worth more than $10,000."

That seemed to be the price that the Des Moines people were asking, too, for they wired several of the magnates offering the young pitcher for that sum. Whether Mr. Comiskey paid that amount is not known. But that he paid a good sum for the pitcher is pretty certain.

But getting down to the first proposition: Let a man step out of the minor leagues and make good and he immediately becomes the standard by which all players are judged. Larry Doyle was among the first of the ball players to sell for a high amount. Immediately when a Three-I. magnate wanted to dispose of a young player he attempted to convince the major league magnate that the youngster was just as good as Doyle was when he left the Springfield club.

In Michigan they measure their pitchers by King Cole, of the Cubs. You attempt to negotiate for a pitcher

NO CHANCE TODAY FOR FOURTH MATCH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—Rain which began falling here again shortly before 6 o'clock tonight effectually killed all hope that the grounds at Shibe park would be in condition for the playing of the much postponed fourth game of the world's championship baseball series between the Athletics and the New York Giants. Nature has done little to dry up the field since yesterday's postponement. The drizzling rain which fell all night finally ceased about 9 o'clock this morning. Threatening clouds, however, continued to hang over the city and the sun only managed to break through for brief intervals during the entire day.

Although Groundkeeper Schroeder and his assistants are doing everything in their power to improve the condition of the field it is practically certain there will be no game before Tuesday.

DIMICK, STAR ATHLETE, JUMPS TO HIS DEATH

PORTLAND, Oct. 22.—Ralph Dimick, a young lawyer of this city and well known in the Pacific northwest and in the middle west as an athlete, met death early today while jumping from the second story fire escape of a local hospital.

Dimick, who contracted pneumonia 10 days ago, as the result of a football game between college alumni and students of the Pacific university at Forest Grove, had been out of his mind. Dimick, who was 28 years of age, attended Pacific university several years ago, later going to Whitman college, Walla Walla, and finally graduating from Notre Dame college at Notre Dame, Ind., where he became widely known throughout the middle west as a football player.

PORTLAND IS FIRST IN PACIFIC LEAGUE RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Portland was first place in the Pacific Coast league pennant race which ended today. Portland also won the pennant last year. The championship was closely contested, Portland being hard pressed by Vernon.

ISBELL IN LINCOLN WITH CHICAGO CLUB

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—In a farcical game in which the two teams exchanged batteries, the Chicago Americans won from the Chicago Nationals today. The Americans freely batted the delivery of Ed Walsh, their own star pitcher, who was on the mound for the Nationals. The game was played for the St. Anne hospital here.

Score:
Americans.....6 11 3
Nationals.....2 7 5

Brown, Ritchie and Archer, Needham, Walsh, White and Sullivan.

Frank Isbell, former Chicago American star and now owner of the Pueblo club, played first base for his old team.

After the game Ed Walsh received an automobile purchased for him as the result of a subscription by his admirers.

STIFF FIGHT AHEAD FOR YOUNG BRITON

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Matt Wells will have some fight on his hands when he meets Ad Wolgast. The Englishman has it on the champion in seven ways from the ace when it comes to pretty fighting, but when Ad gets into action it takes something more than pretty fighting to stay in the ring with him.

Wells may have this needed quality, but he hasn't shown it here yet. Not that the English champion isn't game and hasn't a good punch with his cleverness, but Wolgast is of the Bellinghams type, giving swap punches whenever he can get the other fellow to close quarters and liable to put over the "dope" punch any time. He will sure give Wells some entertainment.

It's an odd thing, but the two best fighters in England seldom travel abroad unless accompanied by some female relative. Freddie Welsh's sister was with him on the previous trip to this country, and she had entire charge of his training table. Wells brought his mother over with him this trip and he intends that she shall remain until he's had a crack at Wolgast.

Boxers are rather superstitious folk, as any manager will tell you. Now and again you can across a first-rater who is not troubled with superstitious fears or things of that kind, but very seldom.

One of the most peculiar mascots a boxer ever possessed was the kangaroo-foot which was the asset of Bob Fitzsimmons. In the usual course of events, Bob was a man of iron nerves, but I think if he had happened to lose his kangaroo's foot on the day of a contest, he would have refused to enter the ring. He would tuck it into the sliken scarf which he wore round his waist and then enter the ring without the least qualm in the world.

Needless to say, he attributed all his success within the hempen square to this peculiar mascot.

Pedlar Palmer has a mascot of a more useful kind. It was nothing less than the green trunks he wore. The marvelous little banamweight used to regard these trunks with an air of awe and many were the comments that would be passed upon their shabby appearance when he entered the ring. But Pedlar Palmer did not care. He had never heard the referee give a decision in his opponent's favor whilst he wore them; consequently, where Pedlar went those green trunks went, too.

Lang Has Tavior.

The present-day "mit-pushers" are not a bit behind hand in the matter of mascots, as Bill Tong's white bull terrier proves. Bill is very proud of his dog and believes that it will continue its luck-giving propensities by helping him to attain his one ambition—the heavyweight championship of the world.

Freddie Welsh, the light-weight champion, has a very charming mascot in the person of his sister. She is present at the adjourning of his fights and Freddie will allow no one else to prepare his meals, as he asserts that she is the one person who can prepare a vegetarian diet properly.

There are many other kinds of mascots, including old pairs of boxing boots, sweaters and such-like garments, which the owners wear by.

I believe that the only mascot possessed by Jack Johnson is an uppercut.

INDOOR SPORTS WILL SOON CLAIM POPULAR ATTENTION

By MONTY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—With the world's series excitement due to subside in many days, such baseball fans and other sport lovers as do not equally enjoy a good football game are now turning their attention to indoor sports, of which there will be at least an average crop this winter.

Bowling, billiards, pool, indoor track athletics, basketball and aquatics will hold the center of the stage during the winter months and provide excitement when "darning bars" over next season's prospects become dull.

The bulk of general interest will be concentrated on the metropolis, the city and track athletes leading the van. New York boasts most of the top-notch runners, jumpers, and weight throwers, as has been the case for years, and as was the case last winter, the city is the mecca for practically all the stars of the one world.

The season of the cueists had an early beginning two weeks ago when Champion John Daly met Alfredo DeOro for the three-cushion title. It is about certain that there will be more action in the batting for the Lambert three-ball emblem than in any other of the green-cloth games. There are Tommy Hueston, John Morcan, Harry Cline and Johnny Moore in the field for the medal and half a dozen matches may be expected before the approach of warm weather in 1912 calls another halt. However, it seems likely that the title will belong to either DeOro or Daly, when the smoke of battle has cleared away.

The pool championship looks like a cinch for DeOro, as Tommy Hueston and Jerome Keogh have not shown themselves to be in the same class with the veteran Cuban in their last contests. Cowboy Weston and Johnny Kling, each of whom has held the title, were about the luckiest fellows that ever happened and really have no license to consider themselves as foes for the great Alfredo.

Last year was a dull one for balk-line enthusiasts. The Hoppe-Morningstar match was the only real one of the season. Had Morningstar won, there would have been more excitement. However, this winter will see the champion in competition more often. George Suttou's challenge, which fell like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, means that at least two men will dispute young Willie's right to the supremacy. Al Cutler, one-time leader of the "shortstop" balk-liners, has intimated that he also will enter the field, and it is not unlikely that Harry Cline will again come out of his retirement and make them all play their best game. There is probably more interest manifested by the general public and cue fans in a first-class balk-line contest than in any other game played with the ivory, and it is to be regretted that more matches at this style have not been played.

In amateur billiards, the National Three-Cushion league will again be the "big noise." It will probably be a more interesting affair as a whole than it was last year, when Pierre Nannone, the Mexican, won the title for St. Louis by outclassing every man he met. He and Charley Norton, the Chicago star, are both out of it now, however, as they became professionals when they met in their $500 series at the close of the league's schedule. Pittsburgh, with Wireback, Trump and Strasser still eligible, will probably be the strongest this year. Dave Luderbach of Brooklyn, making the "city of churches" appear to be second choice, Kansas City figures next in strength at this stage of the game, with St. Louis about fourth.

The national bowling championships, scheduled for Milwaukee, are expected to be on a grander scale than ever before. The tournament at St. Louis was such a success from every standpoint that failure can be conceded to be out of the question.

It is a mystery to me why basketball is not more popular than it is. One of the best games ever invented, it attracts the interest of a comparatively inconsiderable number of persons. Watching a team like the Columbia university five, intercollegiate champions and favorites for this year, one cannot fail to become a devotee of the sport. However, it is almost confined to colleges and schools. In some parts of the country—Pennsylvania particularly—there are professional leagues, and the interest in the play is more just in proportion to the merits of the game, but not so much so as it should be. But the game is growing, and a year or two may see it taking its place as the most important of winter sports.

TRACK COACH WILL GIVE BIBLE TALKS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 22.—Dick Grant, coach of track athletics at the University of Minnesota, will form a Bible study class among his fleet-footed proteges. Grant believes that by combining the precepts of the testaments with the scientific principals of physical training, he can turn out a winning team at the university.

Social reform also will be taught the track stars by their coach, who has announced his intention of resuming all university dances that were inaugurated at the university last year as a counter attraction to the public dance halls of Minneapolis. The Bible classes will meet once a week during the luncheon hour, and another hour each week will be taken up with a lecture by the coach on training and personal hygiene.

"A man who has led a pure, clean, Christian life will be the best able," said Coach Grant today. "The study of highest themes of individual life gives a great fraternal spirit and this is absolutely necessary in a winning team."

WELL-BALANCED BILL

ON AT THE MAJESTIC

One of the best-balanced bills Sullivan & Constance have sent here in some time is that which opened at the Majestic Saturday, for a week's engagement, playing to large and appreciative audiences, who evinced approval of every number without exception. All of the acts are entertaining, and the two comedy photo plays are particularly well received.

The show opens with "A Fair Deal," a clever stock comedy film, which keeps every one laughing all the way through, and Joe Cook, the jack of all trades, does likewise. Cook does a turn in blackface, introducing novelty sketches intended in their original form. So that is why the appeal of these melodious Welshmen is so universal. Scholar and music lover are alike appealed to, and no sooner is a program of a concert published than everybody finds some one thing that he would not only like to hear, but must hear, cannot afford to admit he has never heard. Thus the mind and the heart alike are equally considered by these master artists of the stage.

KYRLE BELLEW TONIGHT

The career of Kyrle Bellew, the famous English actor who comes to the opera house tonight, only in his

and from there, after several successes, he was engaged by Marie-Lyette to become leading man with a particularly fine stock company which she had just formed for the London Imperial.

It was from this post that Lester Wallace engaged Mr. Bellew for the season, as leading man at Wallace's theater in New York. The talented young actor opened in "Harbor Lights" and for nearly five years continuously playing, he remained as leading man of this world-famous stock company.

When Bellew left New York, Mrs. James Brown Potter attached her fortune to his star. For four years they toured over the greatest part of the world in classic repertoire. This partnership came to an end suddenly at Capetown, Africa, where all of their scenery and effects were destroyed in the great Royal theater fire. They returned to London and Mr. Bellew remained in private life until Sir Henry Irving induced him to create the important role of "Oliver" in "The Mystery of St. Mary's." Mr. Bellew is credited with having secured the greatest personal success in that great production. He was next seen in America in his own play, "The Mystery of St. Mary's," and in "The Mystery of St. Mary's." The latter role was a triumph, both in England and America. Then came his appearance in "The Mystery of St. Mary's." The Builder of Bridges, "The Mystery of St. Mary's," "The Mystery of St. Mary's," and now his latest success, "The Mystery of St. Mary's," in which he will be seen here.

Seats for Kyrle Bellew's performance of "The Mystery of St. Mary's" will be secured. The prices are 50c, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00.

"JUST SMILE" BY

RICHARD CARLE

I wouldn't frown for a crown. Laugh once an hour and you'll never need any pepsin.

Smile even if it hurts your face; some people have to be cruel to be kind to themselves.

Everybody likes a joke, no one goes around telling blank verses.

No one ever accused Master Cupid of being a tragedian.

When you look me in the face and smile, I know you haven't got a gun up your sleeve.

To rather be a Buddha than a Buddha.

No man ever laughed when he was premeditating a foul crime.

You laugh naturally, you have to set your face for a frown. Richard (himself) Carle will show you how when he appears in his biggest success, "Jumping Jupiter," at the Opera house.

Some of the newcomers. It is quite out of order, and he doesn't know how to use it. Let him have it, and we will have the ham."

So the bargain was made. The poor man took the ham, which was a little thing not half so large as the ham, and went back to the woods. Here the old man showed him how to use it. All this had taken up a great deal of time, and it was midnight before he reached home.

"Where in the world have you been?" inquired his wife. "Here I have been waiting and waiting, and we have no wood to make a fire, nor anything to put into the porridge pot for our Christmas supper."

The house was dark and cold, but the poor man bade his wife and son wait, and he slipped on his coat and went to turn the crank. First, out came some grand lighted wax candles, and a fire on the hearth, and a porridge boiling over it. Because in the mill he said they should come first. Then he ground out a table cloth and dishes, and spoons and knives and forks. He was himself astonished at his good luck, and you will believe, and his wife and son were beside themselves with joy and astonishment. Well, they had a capital supper, and after it was eaten, they ground out of the mill every possible thing to make their house and themselves warm and comfortable. So they had a merry Christmas eve and morning. When the people went by the house to church the next day they could hardly believe their eyes. There was glass in the windows instead of a wooden shutter, and the poor man and his wife dressed in nice new clothes were seen devoutly kneeling in the church.

"There is something very strange in all this," said everyone. "Something very strange indeed," said the rich man, when three days afterwards he received an invitation from this once poor brother to a grand feast. And what a feast it was! The table was covered with a cloth as white as snow, and the dishes were all of silver or gold. The rich man could not, in his great house, and with all his wealth, set out such a table.

"Where did you get all these things?" exclaimed his wife. "I told him all about the bargain he had made with the dwarfs, and putting the mill on the table, ground out boots and shoes, coats and cloaks, stockings, gowns and blankets, and bade his wife give them to the poor people that had gathered about the house to get a sight of the grand feast the poor brother had made for the rich one.

The rich man was very envious of his brother's good fortune, and wanted to borrow the mill, intending to use it not at home, never to return it again. His brother would not lend it for the old man with the white beard had told him never to sell or lend it to anyone. Some years went on, and at last the possessor of the mill built himself a grand castle on a rock by the sea, facing the west. Its windows, reflecting the golden sunset, could be seen far out from the shore. It became a noted landmark for sailors.

Strangers from foreign parts often came to see this castle and the wonderful mill, of which the most extraordinary tales were told.

At length a great foreign merchant came, and when he had seen the mill, inquired whether it would grind salt. Being told that it would, he wanted to buy it for he traded in salt, and thought that if he owned it he could supply all his customers without taking long and dangerous voyages.

The man would not sell it, of course. He was so rich now that he did not want to use it for himself, but every Christmas he ground out food and clothes and coal for the poor, and nice presents for the little children.

So he rejected all the offers of the rich merchant. The merchant, however, determined to have it. He bribed one of the man's servants to let him go into the castle at night, and he stole the mill and sailed away with it in triumph.

He had scarcely got out to sea before he determined to set the mill to work. "Now, mill, grind salt," said he. "Grind salt with all your might! Salt, salt, and nothing but salt!" The mill began to grind, and the sailors to fill the sacks; but these were soon full, and in spite of all that could be done, it began to fill the ship.

The dishonest merchant was now very much frightened, and what was to be done? The mill would not stop grinding, and at last the ship was overloaded, and down it went, making a great whirlpool where it sank. The ship soon went to pieces; but the mill stands on the bottom of the sea and keeps grinding out "Salt, salt, nothing but salt!" That is the reason, say the peasants of Denmark and Norway, why the sea is salt.
